

THE INTERIOR DESIGNERS

70s GLAMOUR

Jason Sullivan

INSPIRATION I've taken my inspiration from seaside homes of the 60s and 70s in Mexico, Spain and Monaco, and I've imagined them in a contemporary waterfront home in Sydney's Point Piper. So that means lots of glass, air, curves, natural stone and water views, and an absence of clutter. I take the colour inspiration from a peacock's feathers. I'd like to see metal or bronze sculptures experiencing a comeback, be they on an interior wall or in the garden. And most importantly, the lady of the house has to be sporting a turban.

PERSONAL STYLE Although I've only been working in interior design for a relatively short time, the one constant in my style is that I like to mix the old with the new. Some might find this idea a little tired, but I'm constantly finding beautiful new products being developed, while at the same time there are so many past eras that are yet to be celebrated.

Insider TRADING

As 2010 gets underway, Belle brings together eight interior design experts to reveal the trends, colours and themes for the coming year. The mood boards they've created set the tone for the decor and looks making their mark over the next 12 months. Use them for inspiration to create a space that's completely of the moment.
